

In Mexico the gender is not the only gap for financial services adoption.

The critical gaps for the financial services adoption in the country depend more on the community size than in the gender.

